

Seminarian 1972

The world today stands in dire need of a positive, aggressive, and evangelistic promulgation of the eternal truths of the Word of God. Meeting a need of such magnitude demands totally consecrated men prepared spiritually, academically, and practically. Capital Bible Seminary is committed to the thorough training of such men.

Spiritually, Capital deems it essential that the student have a definite sense of God's calling in his life and that he be yielded without reservation to the Spirit of God, obedient to His will, recognizing His divine authority in all areas.

Academically, the Seminary offers an intensified and advanced course of study to the undergraduate with either a liberal arts or Bible college background. The student at Capital is not merely "taught" but is provided with a set of tools which includes a working knowledge of the original languages, and is encouraged to dig for himself.

Practically, Capital Bible Seminary encourages its students to complement their classroom studies by actively engaging in various local ministries. The results of theological study should be reflected in a dynamic Christian outreach, for it is here that the intellectual tree of knowledge brings forth its greatest fruit.

George A. Miles, B.A., B.S.C.E.

While serving as President of Washington Bible College and Capital Bible Seminary, Mr. Miles still finds time to minister in Bible conferences, revivals, and other special meetings. President Miles is currently serving his 28th year in this administrative position.

John H. Mulholland, B.A., Th.M., Th.D.

As Dean of the Seminary, Dr. Mulholland complements his administrative duties by teaching the theology courses and speaking frequently in prophetic Bible conferences.

Homer Heater, B.A., B.D., M.A.

Professor Heater serves as the Registrar and instructor of Semitic Languages and Old Testament Literature. In addition to his Seminary responsibilities, Mr. Heater is also interim pastor of Faith Bible Church in Sterling, Virginia.

Thomas R. Edgar, B.S., Th.M., Th.D.

While serving as the Professor of New Testament and Greek, Dr. Edgar is also kept busy speaking in many of the area churches. He is presently in the process of writing a book on the subject of spiritual gifts.

Herbert D. Arnold, B.A., B.D.

Rev. Arnold takes time from his busy schedule as Pastor of Temple Baptist Church, Fredericksburg, Va., to teach the Homiletics class in Seminary. He also serves as an instructor in the extension school of Washington Bible College.

A. W. Jackson, B.A., B.S.T.

Being in the ministry for the past thirty-five years and currently Pastor of Cherrydale Baptist Church in Arlington, Virginia, Rev. Jackson is well-qualified to teach the Christian Life and Pastoral Studies.

Lindley G. Royston, B.A., Th.M.

Rev. Royston, Pastor of the First Baptist Church in Edgewater, Maryland, is a part-time instructor at the Seminary. Pastor Royston's background in Old Testament and Hebrew well qualify him as instructor of Old Testament book studies.

Mrs. Thomas Edgar

Interim secretary to the Dean and Registrar.

Mrs. John Malone

Some people, due to personal responsibilities, find it impossible to attend Seminary as full-time students. Special enrollment allows them the enrichment of study as a complement to their regular duties.

Rev. Marlin Hardman discussed "Visitation Evangelism" and shared with us the "Coral Ridge" program of evangelism used effectively by his church.

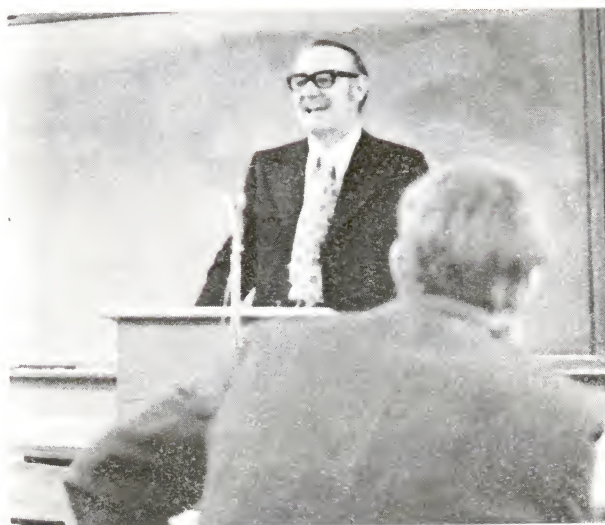

One of the highlights of the past school year was the week of inter-session held January 11-14 concerning the various areas of evangelism. Sponsored by Capital Bible Seminary, this week of evangelistic thrust brought to us well-qualified leaders in their particular fields of evangelism.

Rev. Albert Dasburg related several methods of "Youth Evangelism" such as telephone evangelism and the saturation of gospel literature within the school systems.

Rev. Herbert Fitzpatrick, pastor of one of the ten fastest growing Sunday schools in America, came well-qualified to speak on "Sunday School Evangelism."

Rev. Richard Coons closed this exciting and challenging week of inter-session by presenting a well-organized program for "Pastoral Evangelism."

The sessions featured lectures by the visiting church leaders, question and answer periods open to students and the public, and a wealth of literature involving each area of evangelism.

Though the ultimate benefits derived from participating in such a seminar will be manifested only in time, testimony has already been given by many concerning the positive impact this week has had upon their ministries.

Alumnus

The ultimate test of any educational institution is its product--the graduate. Capital is pleased with its many alumni serving the Lord in many capacities.

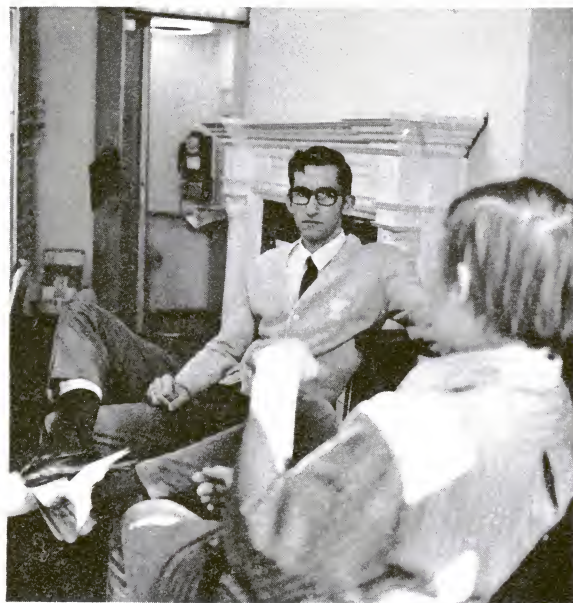

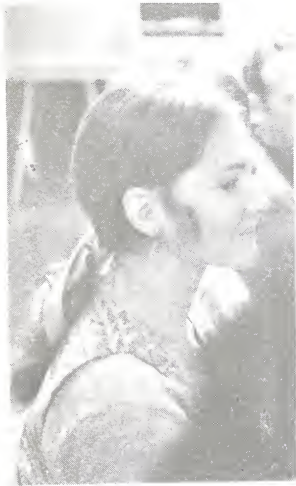

Pastor Charles Hanshaw ('66) ministers in the Independent Bible Church of Martinsburg, W. Va. Charlie is a strong supporter of both the Washington Bible College and the Seminary. He directs the extension schools of WBC at Hagerstown, Maryland and Chambersburg, Pennsylvania. Mrs. Hanshaw is the former Grace Miles (WBC, '63).
